Opening Ceremony for the Graduate Program of the Elite Network of Bavaria
“I-Target – Immunotargeting of Cancer”

Introduction

Immunofest Munich 2014

The "Immunofest Munich 2014" is an International Symposium, which is organized by Ph.D. and medical students of the graduate program 1202 "Oligonucleotides in Cell Biology and Therapy" (GraKo 1202). The GraKo 1202 is funded by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG) and provides a structured research program for doctoral students at the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. Research groups with a focus on immunology, molecular biology and biophysics from both, the medical faculty and the faculty of natural sciences, participate in the program, which guarantees a high degree of interdisciplinarity. Over the last 9 years, the GraKo 1202 has provided an extraordinary training environment for young scientists. During the symposium, which is a highlight of the funding period, the formal closing proceedings will take place and a retrospective overview of the GraKo 1202 will be presented by its speaker Prof. Dr. med. Stefan Endres (Klinikum der Universität München, Division of Clinical Pharmacology).

The "Immunofest Munich 2014" also marks the opening ceremony for the new graduate program of the Elite Network of Bavaria "I-Target: Immunotargeting of Cancer", which will start on October 1st, 2014. Three universities, i.e. Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München (leading university), Technische Universität München and Friedrich-Alexander-Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg, participate in this program, which is aimed at establishing an innovative education platform for graduate students in order to train them to become experts in the pre-clinical development of cancer immunotherapy.

At the Immunofest 20 researchers with fields of interest that range from virology over immunology to immunotherapy and antibody engineering will present and discuss their research projects and recent key findings. The symposium thus offers a communication platform for young scientists to gain first-hand knowledge of hot contemporary research topics.

Munich

Munich, which is located on the banks of the river Isar north of the Alps, is the capital and largest city of Bavaria, Germany. The year 1158, when Henry the Lion, Duke of Saxony and Bavaria, built a bridge across the Isar right beside a settlement of Benedictine monks, is believed to mark the founding year of the city. Today Munich is particularly well known for its "Oktoberfest" (or "Wiesn" as the locals call it), which lasts from late September to the first weekend in October and is the largest annual folk fair in the world. The "Oktoberfest" was first celebrated in 1810 on the occasion of the marriage of King Ludwig and Princess Therese of Sax-Hildburghausen and became an important part of the Bavarian culture. It was also King Ludwig, who was responsible for relocating the elite Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität (LMU) to Munich in 1826. The university was originally founded in Ingolstadt by Duke Ludwig IX of Bavaria-Landshut in 1472 and then transferred to Landshut by King Maximilian I of Bavaria in 1800 before it arrived at its present home in Munich. The LMU received its name in honor of its founding father and King Maximilian himself. Nowadays this history-rich university harbors one of the biggest education platforms for medical students in Germany.
